Council to Look at Planning Process For Development of Northway Complex

by Diane Oberg

Once again the proposed Northway ballfield complex was the topic of discussion before City Council. At their regular meeting on Monday, December 17 council accepted a report on the subject from its Park and Recreation Advisory Board, agreed to consider the subject further at its January 14 meeting, and heard citizen comment.

Council has long planned to construct an athletic complex adjacent to Northway extended, between Ridge Road and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway. In its Report 12-90, the Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) outlined a recommended planning process for the property which begins with a consultant study of the Northway field issues in early 1991. The study would examine matters such as integration of athletic and park amenities, field requirements, and woodland preservation. The board also calls for replacement of any trees removed for ballfield construction. Council accepted the report for consideration at its January 14 regular meeting. PRAB estimates that the fields will require approximately 10 percent of the parkland recently acquired by the city, but noted that much of the area at the site is already cleared.

Rodney Roberts presented 298

additional signatures for his earlier petition asking council to protect the remaining green belt in the area between Ridge Road and the BW Parkway. He said that the petition, now bearing 1,478 signatures, would require the city to maintain the currently wooded property permanently in its natural, present condition. He said that the petitioners are not against ballfields in the cleared area, but when pressed by Mayor Pro Tem Thomas X. White, said that he would be opposed to the clearing of land for fields. He noted that he could not say, without a committee meeting, that the petitioners would be willing to accept any tree cutting for fields. He presented a personal petition to council requesting a study of how ballfield needs can be met without "cutting down our woodlands," possibly by using other sites around the city.

White reminded Roberts that council plans to hold a public meeting on the ballfield issues and Roberts' petition, but is still gathering information.

Roberts objected to several comments reported in the December 13 News Review concerning a November 7 meeting between council and PRAB. He resented the use of the term "tree people" to describe the supporters of his petition and felt that the commitment by Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and council member Edward Putens for the ballfields "totally negates" the public process.

White said that Roberts could add his (White's) name to the list of those supporting the fields. He said that he has been committed to the development of the Northway ballfield complex for as long as he has been on council. He said that Roberts was being very inflexible, citing his responses to White's questions about clearing 3-5 acres for fields.

Weidenfeld said that the comments were in response to PRAB member Joe Wilkinson's question of whether council was just talking about fields, or if they were committed to proceeding with the fields if an acceptable plan could be developed.

Doug Love supported Roberts, but said that, unlike Roberts, he was opposed to ballfields, especially lighted fields. He said that lighting the fields would interfere with the movement of deer and eliminate one of the few unlit areas available to amateur astronomers.

Love proposed an alternate ballfield solution that would also address the parking problems at Roosevelt Center. He estimated that 500 additional parking places would soon be needed to accommodate the new theater, restaurant and indoor pool. To meet these needs he proposed construction of a three- to four-story parking garage over the lot behind the post office. Love proposed that the top floor of this structure would be used for ballfields.

Council Adopts Universal Registration; Okays Green Spring Preliminary Plan

by Diane Oberg

The City Council adopted universal registration at its December 17 regular meeting as required by State law. In other actions, council heard a petition regarding Greenbelt Road and approved the preliminary plan of subdivision for Greenspring II.

Universal Registration

State law no longer permits the city to require residents to separately register for city council elections. As of January 1, 1990 registration with the county Board of Elections has constituted registration for city elections. Council gave final approval to a charter amendment changing city election regulations and procedures to comply with state law.

Although the city cannot require citizens to register separately with the city, state law permits the city to maintain a supplemental registration list for residents who don't want to register with the county but who wish to vote in the city. This could include military personnel residing in the city but maintaining official residence elsewhere for tax and other purposes and people wishing to avoid jury duty. Council left open the possibility of a future charter amendment to establish a supplemental list, but deferred any action until after a February 20 work session on election issues.

Petitions

Representative Steny Hoyer will be urged to hold a town meeting in Greenbelt in early January to discuss issues relating to the Persian Gulf situation. In approving the invitation, issued in response to a letter from Bertram Donn, the Greenbelt City Council made clear that they were not taking a position on the issues involved.

but only supporting a meeting at which citizens and Hoyer can discuss those issues.

Council received, without comment, a letter from James Foy, chair of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee, asking council to investigate the possibility of constructing a pedestrian overpass over Greenbelt Road near Frankfort Drive. Pedestrian safety, he wrote, is of special importance at this intersection, located near Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Foy recognized that the overpass would be an expensive project, a concern echoed by City Manager James K. Giese in his written agenda comments. See COUNCIL, page 4

Polish Planner Spends Week Here Learning New Ideas

by Leta Mach

By participating in an internship program for a Polish planner December 3-7, several people in Greenbelt gained an insight on the advantages they enjoy while also helping contribute to the reconstruction of Polish society.

Director of Planning and Development Celia Wilson spent the week showing Dariusz Rospendek, of Lodz, Poland, what it means to be a city planner in a town of about 20,000 people. Rospendek got a view of many small planning activities which impact on economic development. Before he arrived she had been concerned that he would find it uninteresting. However, that was not the case.

Rospendek was particularly interested in interaction with city council because he was elected to the city council of Lodz in the city's first free elections on May 27, 1990. Lodz, Poland's 2nd largest city, is the country's largest governmental district. Lodz is composed of one canon, while Warsaw, the largest city, is divided into five canons. The city of 900,000 has a city council of 80 members.

Because of the city council's size, Rospendek says, "our meetings are difficult to implement." The last meeting went on for four days; 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day. Council meetings are held every three months. The topics include every program and institution regarding the town from housing to the sewage system.

"We must build. We must create our set of government. It's our first duty," he says.

Rospendek works for the city's Economic Promotion Department. In this, his first visit to America which began in November, he was excited to have learned many American ideas. In addition to Greenbelt, he visited manufacturing plants in Baltimore, the Baltimore Economic Development Corporation, and sites in Towson, Frostburg, Salisbury and Annapolis.

The ideas which he hopes to take back to use in Poland include business incubators, business and industrial parks, and institutions as developers as well as development by private individuals. He hopes to interest private people in doing business because he feels developing small business is the most important way for development to occur. In addition to the economic benefit, this would also lead to the creation of a true middle class. It would have a psychological benefit because, "people are used to receive rather than to try for their fate."

After spending a week with her Polish counterpart, Wilson said that she could "appreciate better the things that we have; the freedoms; the importance of being able to participate fully in the political process."

Rospendek wanted to express his appreciation to Wilson and City Manager James Giese. "Please express my thanks for the hospitality, kindness and politeness of Americans," he said. He added that his experience did not match the picture he had of Americans from our movies, but he promised to go back to Poland and tell everyone what Americans are really like.

State Representatives Come to Greenbelt

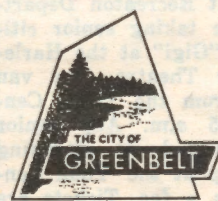

State Senator Leo Green and the 23rd District delegates, Charles J. "Buzz" Ryan, Joan B. Pitkin and Mary A. Conroy will host an open door meeting for constituents Saturday, January 5 from 9 to 11 a.m. in the Greenbelt City Council chambers, 25 Crescent Road.

The open door meeting is a tradition in the 23rd District and the legislators invite all citizens to attend and express their views and concerns on legislative matters.

Sign-up Day for Seniors

On Tuesday, January 8, the Greenbelt Recreation Department will be holding registration day for seniors. This will be the first day that seniors may register for classes, trips and special programs.

Since space is limited for all activities, it is suggested that anyone who is interested in participating, attend this registration period. Registration will take place from 10 a.m. to noon at the Youth Center. Light refreshments will be served. For more information, contact Karen Haseley at 474-6878.

Community Center Design Workshop No. 1

The first of two workshops to develop the program for the Community Center planned for Greenbelt Center School will be held Saturday, January 12, 1991, in the Center School gymnasium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The workshop will consist of the presentation of information about the project, the building, the site and adjacent areas, and suggested uses. A number of uses have already been proposed, but new ones may still be offered. This will be followed by open discussion, focusing on how to match the building and other nearby public building space with the suggested uses.

The thoughts and comments from this workshop will assist the architects in developing alternative building programs to be considered at the second workshop to be held in late February or early March.

The public is invited to attend and participate in this process. For more information call Michael McLaughlin or Celia Wilson at the city office, 474-8000.

Road Runners Run Here

by Larry Noel

The annual D.C. Road Runners 10 and 20 mile running races will be held this year on Saturday, December 29 starting at 10 a.m. at Braden Field. These races, held on a certified course through the streets of Greenbelt and the nearby Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, have been run for over 25 years during the holiday season.

There will also be a 1.75 fun run starting at 10:10 a.m. which will go once around the lake and return to the start at Braden Field. There is a fee and runners may sign up one hour before the start at the Youth Center.

All Greenbelt finishers in the 10 and 20 mile will receive an award. DC RRC championship medals will be presented to the top three finishers in age group categories. Volunteers are needed at the sign up and for course sentries, an excellent place to see the race.

Dick Good from Greenbelt regularly runs in the 20 mile. In November Good set an over 60 age group record in the JFK 50 mile run in Boonsboro, Md. in 8 hours, 42 minutes, 48 seconds.

Seniors Can Thank Heaven For "Gigi" on January 23

On Wednesday, January 23 the Greenbelt Recreation Department will be taking senior citizens to see "Gigi" at the Harlequin Dinner Theatre. The van will leave from the Youth Center at 10:15 a.m. Any senior citizen interested in attending must sign up at the Youth Center. There is a fee. GEAC Reviews Park Plans, Traffic and Green Spring II

by Pat Scully

The next meeting of the Greenbelt East Advisory Coalition (GEAC), to be held at 7:30 p.m. on January 3 at Windsor Green, will feature the election of officers for the coming year. At its December 6 meeting, various members brought the group up to date on the progress since the previous meeting on items of concern.

Schrom Hills Park

The city has reached a settlement to acquire the Steiner property, the last remaining piece of land that will form Schrom Hills Park. The settlement will probably be signed in March. Bids for construction will be requested in January with the contract awarded in March.

The group discussed various design features, particularly the alle. Roy Dahl expressed concern about the width and material; the plans call for a 20 feet wide strip of concrete pads separated by brick pavers. When the concept was originally presented, Dahl said, the alle was to be of brick and serve as a visual focal point for the park. Will a 20' x 100' slab of concrete give the same visual effect?

James Foy, GEAC chair who also serves on the city's Advisory Planning Board (APB), noted that the brick pavers will break up the concrete pads; there will be exposed aggregate pads along the alle for benches and ground level flower beds at intervals.

The question of lighting for the ballfields was brought up but not pursued aggressively; the general understanding is that the conduits for lighting will be installed but that the wiring will only be run if and when a decision is made that lights are appropriate and money is available.

Other queries were raised about the extent of bleachers and dugouts for the ballfields, the number of trash cans to be installed and the status of the lake. No definitive information was available.

Traffic Concerns

A rumor was shared by several members that the State Highway Administration's (SHA) plans for relocating the ramp off the Baltimore-Washington Parkway may be altered. While no official information had been received, reports of funding problems were widespread. The possibility was raised and welcomed that the location of the ramp might be closer to the existing ramp and thus less intrusive on Greenbriar.

Dorothy Pyles raised the question of pedestrian safety at the intersection of Hanover Parkway and Greenbelt Road. When the SHA studied the timing of the light, their concern was primarily with the adequacy of the left-turn signal. Pyles noted that many pedestrians must use two light cycles to cross Greenbelt Road, being stranded on the median strip with traffic passing by in the meanwhile. Right-turning vehicles often fail to yield to pedestrians, forcing those on foot to delay their crossing; slower walkers and people pushing strollers are similarly endangered.

Foy will contact SHA District Engineer Creston Mills to further discuss the intersection.

Sheldon Goldberg reported on the recent city council meeting at which council directed staff to proceed with design of the traffic light for the intersection of Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen. He also reported on the results of the survey concerning making Frankfort Road one-way inbound off Greenbelt Road. He noted that council was planning to schedule a public work session to discuss the issue and suggested that this would be an appropriate forum to discuss all GEAC's traffic concerns.

Development

Foy also reported on the preliminary plans for Greenspring II and the problems council saw in the developers' plans to overlay the mandated tree reservation area with the city's open space designation.

A public hearing was to be held on the Commerce Center II to present the revised site plans. The landscaping has been increased to comply with new requirements. The developer is also seeking a two-year delay in beginning building of the project, probably reflecting the current market conditions.

Pyles noted that the 7-Eleven at Hanover Parkway and Good Luck Road was scheduling a pre-opening reception on December 11. Community opposition, in the form of picketers, was expected to be in evidence, she said.

WINTERIZE WATER PIPES

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC) reminds area residents that the time to "winterize" water pipes to avoid freezing and costly repairs is now.

Turn off all water pipes leading to outside spigots. The valve for these outside spigots is usually found in the basement or in a crawl space. After turning the valve off, open the outside spigots to drain them of residual water. Never leave a hose connected to the outside spigot, even if it is one of the "frost free" designs.

Inside pipes can freeze too, if they are located near an outside wall, or if the area isn't heated. Two remedies are available: (1) Wrap some type of insulating material around the pipes; (2) Make some provision to allow for warmer air to circulate in the room.

When a water pipe does become frozen, a way to thaw it is to use a hand-held hair dryer. Never use an open flame—that can readily melt the solder joint, causing an extensive leak that could damage the contents of the room. One method to forestall frozen pipes is to leave the cold water running by just a trickle during the coldest days. Customers of the WSSC should remember that the pipeline system inside their property line belongs to them, and is their responsibility to maintain. Any repair or replacements inside the property line are a direct expense to the home owner or business operator.

Winter is also a time of increased broken water mains within the Sanitary District, due largely to the havoc that freezing and thawing plays on cast iron pipes. Maintenance crews will respond promptly to these problems.

Giese wrote that the overpass would probably cost more than half a million dollars and said that "staff is unable to identify a potential source of funding." The petition was referred to staff for investigation.

Greenspring II

Council approved the preliminary plan of subdivision for Greenspring II, located along Hanover Parkway at Good Luck Road. The Richmond American project will consist of 91 single family homes on both sides of Hanover Parkway. The two major issues that concerned the city staff involve requirements under county law for mandatory dedication of open space and tree conservation areas.

Director of Planning and Development Celia Wilson had argued that the two set asides are exclusive, not to be combined. The developer had opposed this interpretation, which would require him to set aside 15% of the property. The only alternative offered by the developer would have placed some of the tree conservation area upon private lots, which Wilson felt placed too great a burden upon the homeowners. Tree conservation areas cannot be cleared, in whole or part, without county permission and there is a substantial county fine for violations. At its November 26 meeting council expressed concerns about how violations could be detected.

At this meeting, Wilson reported that while she still feels that the intent of the tree conservation law was for an additional set-aside, the county has been permitting developers to overlap tree conservation and mandatory dedication areas, and has also permitted placing tree conservation areas on private lots. Faced with the likelihood that county zoning officials would not uphold the city's objections, she recommended approval of a subdivision plan overlapping the two zones, but not placing any tree conservation areas on private property. The developer did agree to revegetate additional areas in Greenspring I equivalent to the difference between the set aside areas in Greenspring II and the 15% required if the mandatory dedication and tree conservation zones were not overlapped.

Other Actions

Council directed staff to continue to investigate why the Postal Service is still not delivering mail to residents of Greenspring

I. The reasons given to the city by the post office, that vehicles cannot cross a hump in the roadway and that service cannot begin until the development is 50% occupied, were rejected by council. Ken Berg, vice president for land development for Richmond American Homes, said that the postmaster had told him that the problem was that tandem mailboxes were required, which have now been installed. Berg said that his office will also investigate the matter. The request for investigation was made by Council member Edward Putens.

Greenhorne and O'Mara was hired to design a traffic signal for the intersection of Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive. Design costs will total $7,025.

Council approved an increase in the payments to Keyes Condon Florance (KCF) for their work on the community center design from the original contract estimate of $18,000-$24,000 to a new total of $38,000 plus up to $1,500 for reprographic expenses.

KCF estimated that $9,000 of the increase represents work normally done in the design phase that was moved up into the programming phase. The rest reflects additional meetings and work over that envisioned in the original contract.

Council accepted the resignations of Joyce Martin from the Board of Elections and Benjamin Woolery from the Senior Citizens Advisory Board.

Goddard Space Flight Center Leads Greenbelt Into Future

by Molly Golubcow

T minus ten and counting . . . an 1,100 acre facility employing 3,700 civil servants and over 8,000 contract personnel . . . T minus five and counting . . . an annual operating budget exceeding $1 billion . . . T minus four and counting . . . over 30 years of expertise in space exploration . . . 3,2,1, . . . blastoff and it's a go into the future at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) Goddard Space Flight Center (GSFC).

Located off of Greenbelt and Soil Conservation Roads, the Center is one of Greenbelt's most notable features. GSFC is also a world renowned field center for space research and exploration. Dedicated to the mission of expanding human understanding of the earth, the environment and the solar system, GSFC has always been at the forefront of space research and exploration.

The Center, named after rocket scientist Dr. Robert H. Goddard, has been home to thousands of scientists, engineers and technicians since 1959. GSFC develops, designs, fabricates, tests, launches and analyzes space science missions using all of its own resources. During the past three decades, GSFC has built and tested more than 40 satellites and managed over 160 different satellite projects for NASA. In addition, the Center has been responsible for launching over 170 payloads on Goddard-managed Delta rockets.

In the past year, GSFC contributed to the world of aeronautic exploration in several major projects. Through the design and successful launch of the Cosmic Background Explorer (COBE) satellite, remarkable data have been generated challenging the existing theories regarding the origin of the universe while supporting the "Big Bang" theory. In addition, GSFC is also the operational nerve center of the recently launched Hubble Space Telescope.

What does the future hold for Greenbelt at the Goddard Space Flight Center? Because of Goddard's involvement with the space platform and the earth observing systems (EOS) projects, as well as other space satellites including the Hubble telescope, GSFC activities will soar well into the next century. Plans are underway for the construction of a new campus on the east side of Soil Conservation Road in a wooded parcel of land along side Greenbelt Road. The campus will feature two large buildings primarily to house the EOS program. Local residents can expect to hear a lot of media publicity about the growth at GSFC. In addition, expansion in and around the Center will offer potential jobs and revenue for Greenbelt.

Besides technological advances and employment opportunities, GSFC contributes to the area through community involvement. The public is encouraged to explore and experience Goddard by taking part in several programs offered by the Goddard Office of Public Affairs. For example, the Speakers Bureau can arrange informative lectures by NASA Specialists for groups of 75 or more. In addition, the Traveling Exhibits Program offers more than 50 exhibits, ranging from a replica of the Apollo space suit to a scale model of the Space Shuttle.

The Visitor Center offers a range of museum-like exhibits and space displays providing visitors with an opportunity to increase their knowledge of the history of space exploration as well as basic scientific principles. The use of interactive exhibits involves visitors of all ages in a unique educational as well as entertaining experience. In addition, the Visitor Center offers special events to the public, such as model rocket launches, star watches, guest speakers, and films.

Goddard is also very involved with area, state, and national education programs by providing exhibits and displays. The Teacher Resource Laboratory (TRL) offers educators the opportunity to obtain aerospace-related periodicals as well as preview and copy videotapes for classroom use. Besides the TRL, Goddard offers a Spacemobile for school visits as well as a secondary education program for area colleges and universities.

Tours of the local NASA facility are also available to the public on Wednesday through Sunday. There is no admission fee and parking is free. Visitors may walk the grounds, picnic, and enjoy Greenbelt's natural surroundings, including grazing deer and ducks. Special arrangements can be made for groups of over 20 people. In addition, services for the visually and hearing impaired are available upon request.

Besides education, Goddard is also very community-minded in the types of programs and services available to local residents, such as credit union/banking, expanding child day care to meet growing needs and various clubs and organizations for employees and residents.

Goddard has always welcomed interaction with the Greenbelt community. Whether an employee working on data retrieval from a satellite or a visitor exploring the exhibits, Goddard and Greenbelt will continue to soar into the future together.

For more information on the Goddard Visitor Center and related events, call 286-8982, Wednesday through Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

IRS, Maryland Seek Taxpayers Due Refunds

The Internal Revenue Service and the Maryland State Comptroller's Office are trying to locate those area residents who are due tax refunds from their 1989 and prior year federal and state income tax returns. For the fifth straight year federal and state agencies have combined their efforts to locate taxpayers who are due refunds.

According to H. J. Hightower, IRS district director for Maryland and the District of Columbia, 1,657 federal refund checks, totalling over $849,175 and ranging from $1 to $15,941, were returned by the postal service as undeliverable.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein noted that his office has 1,443 undelivered state refund checks, totalling $248,174, with the average refund amounting to about $172.

Hightower said these taxpayers may have moved or changed their last names during the year and did not notify the IRS or the State of Maryland, or the address on the returns may simply have been illegible. When a refund is returned by the post office, the two agencies attempt to find the taxpayer and deliver the check, but there are usually some who cannot be found.

Anyone who is expecting a 1989 or prior year federal refund check, has moved, or changed their name during the year, and who has not already contacted the IRS, should call (301) 962-2590 in Baltimore, or 1-800-829-1040 elsewhere in Maryland and the District of Columbia.

For Maryland state refund inquiries, taxpayers should call (301) 974-3701.

Greenbelt residents who are listed by the IRS as due a refund are Pamela M. Banks-

Scott, Victoria Onuoha Chukwukereh, Ronald S. Ciccolelli, Mohamed A. and Annam Ghonei El-Desoky, James Harris, Esther Hayden, Arne A. Jones, Mohsen Khalatbari, Michelle W. Roberts and Shankar Sundareswaran
